

WILDGRAIN

CORPORATE GIFTING

The 2026 Collection

ABOUT

Wildgrain started with a simple idea: great bread should be made with great ingredients, and you should be able to bake it fresh whenever you want.

In 2020, Johanna and Ismail started Wildgrain in Somerville, Massachusetts, inspired by the bakeries they loved in Paris. They wanted to make the kind of bread, pastries, and pasta they grew up craving: slow-made, beautifully crafted, and free from fillers and shelf stabilizers.

So they found a better way to preserve it. The freezer.

Instead of changing the food to make it last longer, Wildgrain freezes it at its peak. That means the ingredients can stay simple, the food can stay honest, and you can finish it in your own oven when you're ready. What started as a better way to make bread at home has grown into a nationwide subscription, bringing bakery-quality food to kitchens across the country.

Today, companies can share that same experience through Wildgrain Corporate Gifting. Curated boxes of breads, pastries, and pastas are shipped directly to recipients nationwide, ready to bake and enjoy at home. It's a gift that doesn't just arrive at someone's door. It becomes warm bread on the table, a pastry coming out of the oven, and something worth sharing.

And for those closer to home, there's the Wildgrain Bakehouse in Somerville, near Union Square. It's where you can stop in for a croissant, a loaf, or a coffee and experience Wildgrain for yourself.

From our bakery to your freezer to someone's kitchen table, that's Wildgrain.
